

Mid-market roundtable addresses challenges facing southern Ontario businesses

Aon hosts a Financial Executives International Canada (FEI Canada) event, as it brings businesses and government together to discuss current issues in the Golden Horseshoe

BURLINGTON, October 11, 2017 – Aon recently co-hosted a roundtable discussion of senior financial business leaders with the Southern Golden Horseshoe chapter of FEI Canada. Participants were joined by Ontario Minister of Finance, Charles Sousa, and Ontario Minister for the Status of Women and Minister Responsible for Early Years and Child Care, Indira Naidoo-Harris.

“We wanted to facilitate a discussion that would help business leaders voice ideas, priorities, and concerns with the provincial government,” said Tom Cadman, Chief Commercial Officer and leader of Aon’s Golden Horseshoe Branch.

“Our clients’ priorities are our priorities,” said Colin Platt, Vice President at Aon. “We see it as part of our role as risk advisors to bring decision makers together to dive in to current issues.”

Roundtable discussion topics included: NAFTA; the minimum wage increase; education and training; taxation; international competitiveness, and energy costs.
