

Technology Corner Profile

Low productivity and a low digitization rate have sparked an influx of new technology being developed, which has the potential to make a profound impact on the risks involved on construction projects and within asset management such as safety risk and design risk. Aon understands that this trend may be of interest to our clients and has created the Technology Corner to profile different construction technology and asset management companies. Each profile gives an overview of the technology, addresses its risk treatment potential, and identifies what insurance policies its implementation could impact. Our goal is multi-faceted to raise awareness about leading construction and asset management technologies that could help reduce risk on site for the purposes of educating our clients and the insurance markets.

Product Description

Aclaimant™ has developed a cloud-based resolution performance system that allows organizations to see risk more clearly and do something about it. Our patent pending technology seamlessly streamlines workplace safety, incident and claims management into a single digital dashboard and action center. Safety personnel, risk managers, and team members across organizations enjoy the following benefits from Aclaimant:

Instantly create a digital and connected safety experience to capture actionable data from any internet-enabled device.

Automate incident management processes to mitigate risk in real-time while reducing paperwork from the field to the home office.

Proactively manage and monitor workplace risks and exposures through real-time analytics dashboards.
