

Technology Corner Profile

Low productivity and a low digitization rate have sparked an influx of new technology being developed, which has the potential to make a profound impact on the risks involved on construction projects and within asset management such as safety risk and design risk. Aon understands that this trend may be of interest to our clients and has created the Technology Corner to profile different construction technology and asset management companies. Each profile gives an overview of the technology, addresses its risk treatment potential, and identifies what insurance policies its implementation could impact. Our goal is multi-faceted to raise awareness about leading construction and asset management technologies that could help reduce risk on site for the purposes of educating our clients and the insurance markets.

Product Description

Tive helps companies achieve real-time in-transit visibility of their goods around the globe. Their clients include Fortune 500 shippers and logistics providers. Utilizing rich sensor data through Tive's visibility platform, clients are empowered to become more proactive with their shipments, improve their customers' experiences, and gain supply chain insights that they were not able to access before.
